

Success in a Male-Dominated Field

Overcoming gender-bias in the workplace

When you are a woman, succeeding in male-dominated fields such as engineering and law requires an extra degree of persistence, resilience, and competence. This is changing, but far too slowly.

We have assembled a panel of accomplished women who have what it takes to flourish in male-dominated fields. Come hear their stories of success in the fields of epidemiology, software development and the defense industry. Learn how they managed to overcome the odds and thrive in their respective fields.

This would be a great meeting to bring a guest who is at the beginning of her career. She will be inspired by the panelists' stories, and reassured that she, too, can succeed!
