

AAUW MAKES A DIFFERENCE

One of the ways AAUW makes a difference is by providing graduate and post-doc fellowships to worthy researchers. Not only does funding their research change the lives of the researchers, the advances that result substantially contribute to our nation's well-being.

This month we will hear from one of AAUW's fellowship recipients, Irma Ortiz. Ortiz's field is plant science research, and she is a professor at U.C. Riverside. She is working with tomatoes in a project designed to advance sustainable agriculture.

Our donations to AAUW scholarships fund research by women like Ortiz which results in agricultural techniques that make it possible to meet current demand without compromising the future.

We look forward to seeing you on Zoom for this interesting and educational meeting.
